Activity 2: Migrant Journal Entry

Directions: For this activity, you will write a journal entry pretending to be a Caribbean migrant. In your journal you should discuss the situation in your country of origin, why you left, your experience migrating to the U.S., and your experience living in the U.S.

Before writing your journal, you must choose one of the following Caribbean countries (Puerto Rico, Jamaica, or Haiti) and research its living conditions. Take into account the country's political and economic situation. Additionally, look into why people from these countries tend to migrate to the U.S. Incorporate what you researched into your journal entry.
